Amanda and her husband Mike have lived throughout the United States as part of his active-duty military service. She previously worked as an accounting technician for Wake County Smart Start in North Carolina.

“I’m looking forward to working for a nonprofit again and seeing the difference that the Idaho Community Foundation makes in communities,” Amanda said.

Ana has lived in Spain and Mexico as a study abroad student and English teacher. She previously worked at Vacasa as a trust accountant.

“I’m proud to work at the Idaho Community Foundation because of its commitment to benefiting the people who live and work in Idaho,” Ana said.
