FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

A New Chapter for Idaho's Leader in Philanthropy and Nonprofit Advocacy.

BOISE – The Idaho Community Foundation (ICF), Idaho's statewide philanthropic leader, and the Nonprofit Center, formerly the Idaho Nonprofit Center, announced today that they will relocate to a new downtown Boise office. Beginning October 5, ICF's philanthropic and nonprofit services will be housed together at 250 S. 5th St., Ste. 450 in Boise.

The move marks a significant milestone for ICF and the Nonprofit Center, reflecting the organization's continued growth and its expanding role in serving communities across Idaho.

Since ICF purchased its historic State Street home in 2000, the building has stood as a meaningful symbol of generosity, made possible by a remarkable group of donors who envisioned a permanent, collaborative home for the Foundation. That legacy has anchored ICF's work for more than two decades.

"As Idaho has grown, so has the Idaho Community Foundation," said Steve Burns, ICF President and CEO. "Our State Street home has served us incredibly well, and we are deeply grateful for the donors who made it possible. As we look to the future, our new office will provide the space and flexibility we need to continue strengthening communities across Idaho."

ICF's programs, partnerships and staff have expanded significantly in recent years to meet growing needs across the state. In 2024, the Idaho Nonprofit Center merged into ICF, establishing the Nonprofit Center as a program of the Foundation and further expanding ICF's capacity to support Idaho's nonprofit sector.

The new office will offer improved accessibility, enhanced collaborative workspaces and the infrastructure needed to support ICF's long-term vision to grow the culture of philanthropy and elevate nonprofit impact throughout Idaho.

"This move honors our past and positions us for the future," said Walt Sinclair, ICF Board Chair. "We remain grounded in the generosity that built our State Street home, and we are excited for the opportunities this new space will create for ICF and the communities we serve."

ICF will complete its move in October and will share additional information about opportunities for community members and partners to visit the new space later this fall.
