The Idaho Community Foundation and Nonprofit Center in Partnership with Impala Announce Launch of the Idaho Philanthropy Hub

BOISE – The Idaho Nonprofit Center, a program of The Idaho Community Foundation, and Impala Digital, today announced the launch of the Idaho Philanthropy Hub, a first-of-its-kind, one-stop platform designed to bring unprecedented clarity and transparency to Idaho’s nonprofit sector.

About the Hub

The Idaho Philanthropy Hub brings together billions of data points on every Idaho-based nonprofit and every foundation across the United States that funds them. With detailed classifications spanning issue areas such as education, environment, health, and arts and culture, the Hub creates a comprehensive “map” of philanthropy in Idaho, revealing where funding is flowing, where gaps exist, and where new opportunities for collaboration can drive greater impact.

“The Idaho Philanthropy Hub will be a powerful resource for our state’s nonprofits,” said Kent Fogg, Director of Impact at the Idaho Community Foundation. “By putting high-quality, accessible data directly into the hands of nonprofits and community leaders, we’re helping ensure that organizations here in Idaho have the best access to resources in order to continuing meeting the needs of their communities across the state”

By combining Impala’s cutting-edge data technology with the reach of the Nonprofit Center in The Idaho Community Foundation, the Idaho Philanthropy Hub democratizes access to information and fosters collaboration across the sector.

"Access to strong data can help nonprofits tell their stories, identify new partners, and make a greater difference in their communities," said Laura O'Hora, Nonprofit Programs & Membership Coordinator at The Idaho Community Foundation. "The Idaho Philanthropy Hub gives organizations across the state a clear view of the landscape and the tools to build stronger, more strategic connections."
